"A colleague came into my office on Veterans Day and asked me about what he saw while observing a 2nd-grade teacher's lesson that day. "Isn't there a better way to teach students about war and veterans?" he asked. I immediately said, "Has Rethinking Schools published something on this?" Shortly thereafter I opened the fundraising appeal for RS from Wayne Au in my mailbox. The juxtaposition reminded me how much we assume RS will be there—and why we shouldn't. I'm writing a check right after I finish reading my next set of student papers."

~Lois Weiner, Professor, Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and Director of the Urban Education and Teacher Unionism Policy Project

Rethinking Schools relies on our supporters to help create the socially just and multicultural classrooms that our children and our communities deserve. When you contribute to RS, you are joining a national network of advocates committed to defending and transforming public schools. Please donate now so we can continue this work.
Resources for teaching about war and peace:

- Coming Soon: “Cracking the Box: The Personal Cost of War” by Chris Hawking (in our upcoming Winter 2015/2016 issue)
  - SUBSCRIBE or Give a Gift Subscription!
- Teaching About the Wars by Jody Sokolower
- Rethinking Globalization edited by Bill Bigelow
- War, Terrorism, and Our Classrooms: A Special Report

Join the conversation!

This email was sent to odw@magiclink.net by outreach@rethinkingschools.org from www.rethinkingschools.org
Tired of hearing from us? Simply unsubscribe below, we won’t be offended.
Update Profile | Unsubscribe | Privacy Policy

Rethinking Schools | 1001 East Keefe Ave. | Milwaukee | Wisconsin | 53212

Email or links not displaying correctly? Click here to view the online version.